Cecil attended the convention as National Delegate of the Society's Virginia Jurisdiction.

The Woodmen of the World is a fraternal benefit society founded 91 years ago in Omaha, Nebraska. Today, the Society provides more than six billion dollars of life insurance protection on more than 900,000 members in 3,500 local lodges which feature fraternal, social, civic and patriotic activities. Elected delegates from 29 jurisdictions of the Society convene every four years to review its fraternal and business affairs and report back to the membership after the convention closes.

Speakers at the convention were the Honorable Charles O. Whitley, U. S. congressman from North Carolina; Arley R. Bejelis, Minneapolis, Minnesota, chairman of the board and chief executive office of the Lutheran Brotherhood; and J. D. Anderson, chairman of the City Development Council in Omaha, and retired chairman of the board of Guarantee Mutual Life Company.

Woodmen National President Nick T. Newberry made his report to the delegates on the progress and financial status of the organization during the past four years. National directors were also elected and installed for four-year terms.

The convention closed with an audio/visual presentation entitled, "Our Woodmen Care Challenge," in which President Newberry outlines goals to be accomplished prior to the next national convention in 1985.

Letter to the editor

Writer lauds Reagan plan

Editor:

Those who believe in our free enterprise system and the magic of private property are satisfied to see President Reagan's great victory in the substantial tax cuts fight in the House of Representatives on July 29.

The American free enterprise system has brought the greatest good to the greatest number of people and displayed the spirit of freedom and opportunity. The hard work and industry of most of Americans made this country the richest country on the globe.

The free enterprise system and private property are noble human institutions because without those institutions men would be like a flock of animals. The freedom of free enterprise is the most basic of all human rights. The destruction of this freedom would cause the other human rights to become purely academic without any substance.

Unfortunately, the opposition of President Reagan does its best to undermine and sabotage the aspirations of the President to revitalize the economy of the U. S. Our major T.V. networks, the House Speaker, Thomas P. O'Neill, many House Democrats and the liberal press tell us that the President's economic program favors the rich.

The time has come to realize that the so-called rich ones who are able to earn $50,000 or over yearly should be proud about their achievements. They should not feel sorry for lazy and shiftless persons who are causes of their poverty.

Our domestic enemies, especially the television, display all kinds of chicanery with a consummate akill in order to subvert the work of President Reagan and the economic foundations of our country. Therefore, informed taxpayers should stand up and defend our President and our private enterprise system by all legal means.

Sincerely yours,
Dr. Alexander V. Berkis
